DEMOCRATS PLACE TICKET IN FIELD AT A CONVENTION

KEARNEY AND KAREL HEAD THE OLD LINE FACTION OF THE PARTY.

ENDORSE PRES. WILSON

And Official Acts of Present Administration in Platform—Alyward and Husting in Race Also.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Milwaukee, July 15.—Now that the smoke of the preliminary engagement of the democratic forces has cleared away the split between the two factions of this party is wider than ever. The gathering of democrats from all parts of the state held Tuesday placed in nomination a full state ticket with a candidate for United States senator, passed resolutions in which the work of Wilson, Bryan and the administration at Washington was extolled, listened to fiery speeches relative to democratic success and adjourned.

Aylward Out.

Meanwhile John Aylward of Madison, twice candidate for governor at the state elections made his final announcement as a candidate for governor and took occasion to instill into the minds of state democrats his bitter hatred for Judge Karel, the nominee of the convention and the untiness of that gentleman for the nomination, using the newspapers to further his end. Paul O. Husting of Mayville also took occasion to announce his candidacy for the United States senate and Joseph E. Davies, democratic national committeeman and commissioner of corporations at Washington disappeared entirely, so completely he could not be found when a delegation of democrats sought him to invite him to address the West Side meeting.

JUDGE KAREL.

War to Come.

It means a war betwen the Kearney-Karel faction and the Husting-Aylward-Davies faction from now on. The latter have the federal patronage to wield as a powerful club to aid their cause while the former must stand on their own organization. At the Karel meeting there were bellicose talks by several speakers although harmony was talked of, urged and insisted upon and Wilson and Bryan praised to the high heavens.

Ernest Fiedler of Mineral Point called the gathering to order and then introduced Calvin Stewart of Kenosha as temporary chairman. Then came the appointment of committees as follows:

Committees are Named.

The formality of opening the convention with a set speech being over the congressional districts reported their representatives on the committees on resolution and organization as follows:

Committee on Resolutions—James L. O'Connor of Milwaukee, chairman; George C. Sutherland, Janesville; John C. Healey, Beaver Dam; Leo Somers, Madison; Maurice McCabe, Milwaukee; E. G. Eggerer Chilton; John R. Doherty, La Crosse; Fred Genrich, Wausau; C. G. Wilcox, Antigo; B. J. Malley, Arcadia and T. G. Ames, Monocqua.

Committee on permanent organization: Thomas A. A. Fagan, Racine; H. J. Rooney, Plymouth; L. H Dawes, Stoughton; M. J. Sullivan Milwaukee; Albert Thierbach, Milwaukee; Carl Hansen, Manitowoc; W. Jackson Bell, Oxford; L. T. Pastalone, Stevens Point; D. O. Evans, Marinette; Nels Peterson Galesville and John Gamper of Medford.

Many Speeches.

Of course Stewart made a speech filled with quotations from the bible and Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson. While the convention waited for the committees to report, J. M Clancy, who had been elected permanent chairman made one of his characteristic addresses. He gave the gathering the old time political twang and kept the audience wild with enthusiasm. Clancy is a wise old politician and he took advantage of the occasion to drive home a lot of thoughts.

The platform committee reported as did the one on organization and the reports were accepted. The platform in brief took up the following subjects and while it dealt with state affairs it also handled national affairs with fullsome praise.

Some Provisions.

The platform adopted, among other things, strongly indorses the national administration, insists upon a radical reduction in state taxes, favors the abolition of all unnecessary state boards and commissions and wherever practical the consolidation of those which remain, the removal of the state university from the domain of politics the provision of sufficient revenue to maintain the high standard of educational excellence, the banishment of its lobbyists from the halls of the legislature and upon making it subservient to the people who support it favors good roads, and challenges the Republicans to inform the voters of Wisconsin, if they can, why taxes have leaped from $4,000,000 to $18,000,000 a year within ten years.

An amendment to the primary election law is favored authorizing the calling of party conventions for the purpose of adopting party platforms and perfecting the party organization.

That part of the platform pertaining to national affairs reads as follows:

"We indorse without qualification the splendid achievements of the present Democratic administration and recognize that every act has been in the fulfillment of our party platform.

"We indorse without qualifications the splendid work of President Wilson, the cabinet, and congress, recognizing that every act has been in fulfillment of our platform. We believe that the president has earned the confidence and approval of all civilized people by his humane, broad, progressive, but conservative treatment of the perplexing problems that have arisen between our nation and our sister republic of Mexico.

"We are proud to know that our plan of tariff revision and reduction has been successfully enacted into law, and that the industrial interests are speedily conforming to that plan.

"We hold that the money question has been sanely solved in the interest of the masses; that the funds of the government have been judiciously planted along the arteries of trade so that in emergencies speedy relief may be had, and that the wisdom of the policy is unmistakably attested by the promptness with which the banks of the country have adjusted themselves to the change.

Praises Trust Attitude.

"We congratulate the administration upon its success in divorcing the national treasury from Wall street and for its effective prosecution of the trust magnate sand stock manipulators. We point to the disgraceful and criminal debauchery of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad as a fair sample of the atrocities that were committed under and with the approval of Republican administrations, and we pledge our allegiance and loyal support to the president and congress in their efforts to redeem the nation from the baneful effects of Republican misrule."

The Ticket.

Then came the nomination of a state ticket and the following was placed in nomination and endorsed by the delegates.

For United States Senator—Thomas M. Kearney, Racine.

For Governor—John C. Karel, Milwaukee.

For Lieutenant-Governor — Willis Ludlow, Monroe.

For Secretary of State—Fred Rawson, Plainfield.

For State Treasurer—Joseph Fisher, Marinette.

For Attorney-General—Charles A. Kading, Watertown.

Then the candidates appeared and made characteristic speeches, full of harmony and really the only talks during the long afternoon that were not warlike in their tone and bitter in their inferences towards Aylward and Husting and Davies. Taking it all in all it was a typical democratic convention that really did just what it had planned to do and widened the internal fight between the two factions.

BELIEVE DAM BILL WILL BE FAVORED

Difference of Opinion Is Removed After Long Conference at White House.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, July 15.—As a result of the long conference at the White House last night, all difference of opinion over proposed conservation legislation were removed and passage of the bill at this session of congress was believed to be assured.

After several hours' session a complete agreement was reached between advocates of the Adamson general dam bill now pending in the house, and the Ferris bill to regulate water power process on public land.

The conference decided to keep jurisdiction over all dams and water power sites on the public domain and those on property not in the public domain separate.

The participants in the conference were the president, Representative Underwood, Secretaries Lane and Garrison, Representatives Adamson and Stevens representing the interstate and foreign commerce committee and Representatives Ferris and Lenroot of the public lands committee.

STRIKE IS STILL IN AIR SAY ENGINEERS

Breaking Point Is Reached Between Employers and General Managers' Committee.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, July 15.—Relations between the enginemen of the railroads west of Chicago and the general managers' committee approached the breaking point today when the men representing the railroad prepared to present a final ultimatum of working conditions. The managing committee declared yesterday that the demand could not be agreed to.

Several members of the engineers' committee predicted today that a great strike would be called unless the managers modified their attitude. Only a small per cent of the men voted against a strike and the referendum just completed.

Official written notices to the manager committee of the western railroads that the 55,000 enginemen on those roads would not arbitrate their wage difficulty with their employers, was prepared today by union officers.

The position of the employes was outlined verbally to the manager committee yesterday when the result of a strike vote showing that nearly all of the enginemen and firemen favored a strike, was made public.

A formal reply to the message from the foremen was expected late today or tomorrow.

CORPORATIONS LICENSES SHOW A VERY DECIDED INCREASE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison, July 15.—Corporation licenses and filing fees received by the secretary of state show an increase of $79,945.55 over 1913, according to a report for the fiscal year closing June 30.

The past year saw 1,228 articles of corporaton filed, a gain of 68,499 amendments a gain of one, 54,120 foreign, a gain of two.

There are approximately 12,000 existing domestic corporations. Nearly one thousand foreign corporation licences in Wisconsin, two hundred co-operative corporation associations, and about six hundred telephone companies.

It is impossible to compute the number of non-stock corporations and railroads because these do not report to the department.

MEN WHO KNOW FARM WORK CAN GET JOBS STATES CROWNHART

Chairman of Industrial Commission Mentions Insufficient Supply of Men for Meeting Demand.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., July 15.—"Men who know anything about farm work can get employment at good pay right now," said Chairman C. H. Crownhart of the Industrial commission today in speaking of the employment situation. "In our free employment office at Milwaukee the mail each day brings fifteen or twenty requests from farmers who want men. These jobs on farms pay from $20 to $35 a month with board. Most of the farmers expect to pay transportation from Milwaukee to their various locations. While these calls for help are pouring into the Milwaukee office, the applicants for jobs on farms are totally insufficient to supply the demand."

For more than a year the Industrial commission, through its free employment offices at Milwaukee, Oshkosh, Superior and La Crosse has been trying to help the farmer to solve the problems of help. Bankers and others throughout the state have given their co-operation and hundreds of hands have been furnished. Just at this time, however, when Wisconsin farmers are beginning the work of harvesting a record crop and employment in the cities appears to be scarce, the lack of farm workers is becoming serious.

"Our superintendent in the Milwaukee office," said Mr. Crownhart, "is doing everything in his power to attract workingmen to the farms. He gives personal attention to requests and endeavors to answer every inquiry promptly. The farmers who go right to the office at 241 Fourth street of course, get the best opportunity for picking men. Nearly every morning farmers may be seen waiting in the office to engage men."

Last year the Milwaukee office received 1,568 applications from farmers, who wanted men to work on their farms. In response to these applications 1,311 men were referred to the jobs, but only 814 of them went to work. These figures indicate that a great many of those who indicated that they were willing to do farm work either changed their minds before they got to the farms, or were refused employment when they reported for work.

LIQUOR PROBLEM IS PARAMOUNT AT MEET

Indications Point to Vigorous Fight Over Prohibition at Iowa State Republican Meet.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Des Moines, July 15.—As in the recent progressive convention here the liquor question appeared to be dominating the attention of the delegates to the republican state convention here today, prior to the call to order by Paul Stillman, temporary chairman. Indications were that a vigorous contest will be precipitated in the committee on resolutions over this phase of the platform.

Senator Albert B. Cummins was on the program for an address this afternoon.

CALLS WILSON IMPRACTICAL IN THE OPENING ADDRESS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Des Moines, Ia., July 15.—"There sits today in the White House a splendid but utterly impractical man; a schoolmaster and not a statesman and with him a congress which, however much it may grumble and chafe under dictation, will yet do this autocratic bidding."

This was the manner in which Paul E. Stillman, temporary chairman, characterized President Wilson and congress, in his speech of acceptance before the republican state convention here today.

Redding, Cal., July 15. — Black smoke belched a mile high from the crater on Lassen Peak early today and then drifted southward before the wind in a banner ten miles long.

RUSSIAN PHYSICIAN LEAVES FOR SIBERIA TO CARE FOR MONK

Professor Federioff Will Investigate Conditions of Near Murder Gufeva.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

St. Petersburg, July 15.—The emperor's court physician, Professor Serdius Petrovitch Federioff and the empress' lady in waiting, Mademoiselle Virubova, started today for Tyumen, Siberia, according to the courier, to attend the mystic lay monk and imperial confidant, Gregory Rasputin, who is suffering from a wound inflicted by a woman who tried to kill him.

Newspapers said today that Gufeva, the would-be assassin, who is in jail, is said to have long meditated killing Rasputin and thus put an end to the "awful evil wrought by him in Russia by his imposters under the disguise of a prophet."

She declared, "He has shaken Christianity, was sowing temptation and was blaspheming and mocking the most holy feelings of true belief," and she added that "he enjoyed absolute immunity and had openly and without conscience, ruined the lives of young girls."

Gufeva concluded, "I wanted to kill him last year. I went to Yalta, but could not reach him because he was so closely surrounded by aristocratic women followers.

"I regret that I failed to kill him. All the same he will not live. The people of Russia will not endure such actions."

Rasputin on one occasion said: "It is all cursed Helidorous, Abbot Tfaritfyn. But to the confusion of himself and all my enemies I will live and they will have a rope around their necks."

Helidorious was a great rival of Rasputin in the Russian capital, whence he was recently banished owing to Rasputin's influence with the emperor.

Rasputin is recovering from his wounds.

OHIO COLLEGE GIRLS HOLD MANY RECORDS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Painesville, O., July 15.—If the mistaken impression prevails that the only real girl athletes in the United States are schooling at Vassar, Smith and Wellesley, it should be corrected, according to girls at Lake Erie College here. These girls hold seven world's records and are striving for more. Vassar holds five world's records.

Architects are drawing plans for a huge gymnasium to replace the inadequate quarters in which Lake Erie girls have been forced to train for field events. The new building will cost nearly $100,000 equipped, and will furnish quarters for over 400 girls.

Miss Ruth E. Potwine, director of physical training, promises to turn out more stars in the world of feminine athletes than all the other colleges for women combined.

The Daily Thought

"Every man is my master in some one thing," says Emerson.

Wise men are ever alert to acquire knowledge, for in knowledge comes power.

Men and women who have no other desire than keeping up to date are active readers of the advertising in the daily newspapers.

They realize that it gives them information to be had nowhere else.

It keeps them in touch with progress—makes them a part of the world's work.

Advertising is one of the most enjoyable educators we have today.

SANITATION TO BE STRICTLY ENFORCED BY BADGER TROOPS

Annal Encampment at Camp Douglas Will be Scene of Careful Supervision and Inspection.

SPEND VAST AMOUNT FOR EXTENSION WORK

United States Government For Next Fiscal Year to Give States Funds for Agricultural Work.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, July 15.—From the United States government for the next fiscal year each state will receive $10,000,000 for agricultural extension work.

Such a schedule has just been worked out by the United States Department of Agriculture.

This fund is made available by the Smith-Lever bill providing for co-operative agricultural work between the states and the Department of Agriculture.

"The act makes available for the next nine years," says the department, "an aggregate sum of $23,120,000 of federal funds to be expended in instruction and practical demonstrations in agricultural and home economics. To obtain this total the states must appropriate for like purposes a total of $18,600,000, making a grand total of $41,920,000 to be expended during the next nine fiscal years on direct agricultural extension work. Thereafter the federal government is to appropriate $4,580,000 annually, and the states to take their full quota, must appropriate $4,100,000 annually, making a total annual expenditure for this purpose of $8,680,000."

Next year each state will receive a substantial increase in the sum averaging from $21,039 in California to $366,282 in Illinois and $46,893 in Pennsylvania—the increases being based in the rural population of each state.

The United States Department of Agriculture is today engaged in sending individual official notices to 58,000 manufacturers that after May 1, 1915 the "Guaranteed Under the Pure Food and Drugs Act" label will be unnecessary.

This action follows the ruling by the secretaries of the treasury, agriculture and commerce that the people are deceived into believing that that stamp is the government's guarantee of the purety of the article. Such a stamp means, simply that the manufacturers will protect his dealer if any charges are made that the goods are misrepresented. Next year the stamp will be required only upon the bill of sale.

Agricultural experts have discovered an insect that has sixty kinds of enemies who want to eat it up—and the department wants to protect the "enemies."

Most of these devourers are birds, with orioles, swallows and nighthawks as the most important. The scientists declared the insect—none other than the boll weevil of cotton fame—must be destroyed because of its harm to the South's cotton plantations.

An investigation showed that the nighthawk caught the weevil while it buzzed in the air, en route on its winter vacations—the migrations southward. During the cotton growing months the swallows get in their best work for they snap the boll weevils while they fly over the fields. In addition to these two birds 58 others are waiting every opportunity to "gobble" the cotton "rebel."

Instruction in feeding silage to milch cows is new advice given farmers by the Department of Agriculture. "Silage should be fed directly after milking or several hours before," the department advises. "If fed immediately before milking the odor of silage may pass through the cow's body into the milk. Besides the milk may receive some taints directly from the stable air. On the other hand, if silage feeding is done subsequent to milking, the silage odors will have been thrown off before the next milking time.

"Calves may be fed silage as soon as they are old enough to eat it. It is more important that silage fed to calves should be free from mould or decay than the older stock. They may be given all the silage they will eat up clean at all times. Yearling calves will consume about half as much as mature stock. If supplemented with hay, little grain will be required to keep the calves in a healthy, thriving condition.

Beginning August 1, this year the United States Department of Agriculture will declare a quarantine against Maine potatoes because of the prevalence of a powdry scat on the seed potatoes of that state.

The Department of Agriculture announced recently that the trophy offered by the Louisville, Ky., business men for the team of ten boys in any Southern state who could show the best records in corn growing has been awarded to the Alabama corn clubs. The boys in that state had the best records at the recent Conference for Education in the South.

EXPECT INDICTMENT OF MRS. CARMAN IN FREEPORT MYSTERY

Subpoena New Witnesses Whose Testimony is Expected to Have Important Bearing in Case.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Mineola, N. Y., July 15.—A grand jury from which two members withdrew because of friendship for the Carman family, resumed today its deliberation in the case of Mrs. Florence Carman, held in jail as having fired the shot which killed Mrs. Louise Bailey in Dr. Carman's office at Freeport on the night of June 30.

It was expected that the jury would complete its work today and that if an indictment were found it would be returned tomorrow.

With the resumption of the hearing District Attorney Smith announced that he had issued a subpoena for Mrs. Ellen Corby, niece of Mrs. Carman. It is understood that she is one of the two women who have been sought since the murder, as having been in the doctor's waiting room, and who fled when they heard the shot fired.

The first witness examined today was Henry Debeau, who testified to seeing Mrs. Bailey going to the Carman home. Another witness was Miss Helen Coombs, who was in the waiting room when the murder was committed.

It was thought likely that Mrs. Carman would not be called before the jury. Her counsel had agreed to waive immunity for her, but in the opinion of the district attorney, it is inexpedient to have her testify.

The last witness before the jury was Frank F. Farrell, a tramp, who went to the back door of the Carman home on the night of June 30 to ask for food.

It is understood that Farrell's story corroborated in general the accounts given yesterday by Celia Coleman.

Maid Testifies.

Details of stories told to the grand jury yesterday by Celia Coleman, negro maid in the home of Dr. Edwin Carman, became known today shortly after the grand jury's investigation of the murder of Mrs. Louise Bailey in Dr. Carman's office, was resumed.

Besides saying that Mrs. Carman had hurried through the kitchen from the back yard immediately after the shot which killed Mrs. Bailey was fired, the maid, it is understood, said Mrs. Carman had on a kimono at that time. Mrs. Carman, herself, said she wore a kimono, but insisted that she was in her bedroom.

Dr. Carman, who is here, said today that he was sure the hand thrust through the window when the shot was fired, was a man's.

He recalled, he said, that on the wrist he saw a man's cuff.

EXPECT CLOSE VOTE TO APPOINT JONES

After Lining Up Senators, Issue Will Probably Be Brought to a Vote Friday or Saturday.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, July 15.—After a night of constant effort to line up administration senators for President Wilson's nomination of Thomas D. Jones of Chicago for the federal reserve board, Whips reported to the white house today that a vote probably would not be reached before Friday or Saturday, and that the result, while a victory for the president, would be very close.

Six democratic senators were reported to the white house as opposed to the confirmation. Senators regarded as doubtful went to the white house for conferences with the president. Officials said that the president was taking no part in the preliminary fight for a vote in open session.

FAMINE THREATENS DOMINICAN REBELS

Disease and Supply Shortage May Force Attacking Army From Stronghold.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, July 15.—Famine and disease threatened to drive the Dominican rebels from their stronghold in Puerta Plata from which President Bordes has been unable to dislodge them during a campaign of several months. Captain Eberly of the cruiser Washington reported today that food and water were very scarce and that the death rate was increasing daily in consequence.

Otherwise today's dispatches reflected the situation as being in the same chaotic and indecesive state which has led the United States to mobilize marines at Guantanamo. General Victoria, a nephew of the former president, is said to have cast his lot with President Bordes, thereby increasing the federal forces by one hundred men.

MARKED DECLINE IN CASH DEPOSITS IN VARIOUS STATE BANKS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison, July 15.—A marked decline features nearly all items of the abstract of reports on the conditions of state banks and trust companies compiled by the state banking department today.

The decrease in assets is especially noticeable. The total assets of $233,144,107.62, being $5,000,802.30 lower than the assets of March 4th. Resources dropped $5,361,622.34, standing on June 30, $30,784,911.23.

The enormous automobile trade is accounted in large parts for the general decrease noticed in this report.

The summer months usually being a nominal decline in bank resources and there are other contributing factors in the present condition. Next fall will show a general increase, officials say.

There are five hundred fifty-six, including fourteen trust companies and five savings banks, a gain of four for the period.

One of the encouraging features of the report is the large gain in assets over a year ago, the gain being $16,234,278.63 for the year.

SPECIAL TRAIN FOR HUERTA'S FAMILY IS THE LATEST REPORT

RUMORED DICTATOR IS PREPARING TO SAIL FROM PUERTO.

DUTCH WARSHIP READY

To Take Fugitives On Board, It Is Said, When the Proper Time Arrives.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Vera Cruz, July 15.—Two special trains conveying the families of General Huerta and General Blanquet and others from Mexico City today are reported to have arrived at Orizaba at nine o'clock this morning. From that point it is believed they may proceed to Puerto, Mexico, where they should arrive tomorrow morning.

The Dutch cruiser Kortenaer, which for several days has been in the dock here, left at 10 o'clock this morning. Her destination was said to be Puerto Mexico. The belief that General Huerta and his friends intend to board the Dutch warship was strengthened by the fact that her captain went to the capital soon after his arrival, and that the cruiser sailed without him.

No Special Train.

Vera Cruz, July 15.—Mexican federal officers at the railroad [illegible] denied any knowledge of the special train reported to have left the capital during the night conveying the family and relatives of General Huerta to Vera Cruz. Passengers who arrived today, however, said such a train was standing in the yards at Mexico City when they left yesterday morning.

Some passengers who reached here today said the capital was full of rumors about General Huerta's resignation, but no official announcement had been made up to the time they left, although the probability of the provisional president's resignation was generally admitted.

French Imprisoned.

Washington, July 15.—Killing of the director and the inspector of the school of the Christian Brothers at Zacatecas, Mexico, and the imprisonment of eleven members of the order, all French citizens, was reported to President Wilson today in a telegram laid before him by Brother Clementus, a member of the order. The president was asked to take immediate steps to have the imprisoned men set free and to prevent threatened similar appearances at a number of other places where other schools are located. A similar petition was sent to the French government.

Washington Waiting.

Washington, July 15. — With Huerta's family in flight today from Mexico City, the resignation of the dictator was expected today early by officials in Washington. Mexico City dispatches state that Huerta and General Blanquet, minister of war, might follow their families to Vera Cruz today.

In some quarters a view was expressed that the departure of the families meant Huerta was only preparing to make a final stand against the constitutionalists, commanding his troops in person.

Carranza's forces continued preparations today to press their campaign against Mexico City. Officials believe the constitutionalists will be in Mexico City within a few weeks, regardless of the action of the Huerta government.

Villa at Juarez.

El Paso, July 15.—Francisco Villa, his staff and a small escort, arrived today at Juarez to spend a few days at the border here. The northern divisional commander is expected to turn south and have his entire army moving toward Mexico City within eight days. The Villa troops are spread over Southern Chauhuahua. While at Juarez, General Villa will arrange for future supplies. While it is known that Villa's supply of artillery ammunition is ample, he is short of rifle cartridges.

Evacuate Guaymas.

On board the U. S. California Mazatland, Mexico, July 14 via San Diego, July 15.—Evacuation of Guaymas by the Mexican federal forces began today with the arrival of the steamer Beneto Juarez, according to reports made to Rear Admiral Howard. The first step preliminary to the general exodus of the federals began with the embarkment of horses and cattle.

Conferences between the federal and constitutionalist generals at Guaymas relative to the exchange of prisoners continued throughout the day and the negotiations have been practically completed. The federal commander reserved the right to certain exceptions when the transfers were made.

Go to La Paz.

The California and the destroyer, Creble, departed today for La Paz, Lower California, where it is expected the federals and insurgents will agree on the joint support of Carranza.

Colnel Gomez, a Zacatista officer, who has taken charge of Acapulco in the name of the constitutionalists, had promised protection to all foreigners. His forces there consist of two thousand men.

The evacuation at Guaymas of federal forces will have the effect of reopening the large Southern Pacific railroad at Empalme, on the outskirts and result in the restoration of through service between Nogales, Arizona and Tepic, Mexico, capital of the state of that name.

SOO "THIRD LOCK" NEARING COMPLETION

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., July 15.—With a length 350 feet greater than any other lock in the world, the new "third lock" at the Soo canal is rapidly nearing completion and engineers in charge of the work today predicted that within a month it will be open to navigation. The new lock has a total length of 1,350 feet, a width of 80 feet and a depth sufficient to permit boats of 24-foot draft to pass through it.

The completion of this new work will be epochal in the history of great lakes navigation. With the locks already in operation here it will permit a gross tonnage to pass through from the waters of Lake Superior to the lower lakes that is ten times greater than the expected annual tonnage of the Panama canal. Three locks are now in operation in the canal, two on the American side of the St. Mary's river and one on the Canadian side. Two additional locks are under construction on the American side, one, known as the "third lock," to be completed during the latter part of August.

Good Glue.

Nearly every housekeeper who has occasion to use glue for mending articles in the home finds that frequently after the glue dries the article to which it has been applied breaks, tears, or springs apart. This can be remedied if glycerine is added to the glue in proportion of one part glycerine to four parts glue, as the articles mended in this way, "stay mended" indefinitely.

Shattered.

He was a Hollander, just arrived in this country to seek his fortune, and he had much difficulty in regulating his pronunciation, and at times his words were almost unintelligible to his host's small boy, who sat in a corner of the room, somewhat mystified at last the Hollander departed, and the small boy said to his father: "Daddy, is he a broken Englishman?"

DEAN DELANY HAS MODERNIZED CREED

MILWAUKEE CLERGYMAN'S ARTICLE IN LIVING CHURCH FULL OF SARCASM.

SUGGESTS NEW CREED

Would Make It Read So That Those Who Do Not Believe In Old Version Could Become Pious.

Episcopal circles throughout the country are deeply interested in an article appearing in the recent issue of the Living Church, written by the Rev. S. P. Delany, dean of All Saints cathedral, Milwaukee, in which a new creed, a new prayer book, a new church and a new bible are advocated in startling sentences.

At first reading the article appears to be an argument for these departures, but running through is a vein of sarcasm which puzzles the reader.

Dean Delany said in discussing the article that people could be found who could support the suggestions made.

Believes in Old Creed.

"I believe in the old creed," he said, "but there are people who do not agree with me. They would establish a new church along the lines I have suggested. You are right, however, in classifying my article as sarcasm."

The article printed under the heading "Why Not a New Creed?" follows:

"It is uncomfortable, to say the least, to join in reciting a creed in which you do not believe. It is still more uncomfortable to lead a congregation in reciting such a creed.

'Why do so? Why make fetish of a form of words? Why not compose a new creed?

"There are various groups of clergy in the churches within the Anglican communion who would welcome a new creed. These groups do not all object to the same things in the old creed; but they are all broad minded men and could easily be brought together on the basi of a new creed, which would incorporate the results of modern criticism as well as the modern tendencies of federation and reunion.

"A tentative new creed is herein respectfully suggested, as a possible relief for many who are suffering from the outworn and exploded features of the old creed. For purpose of comparison the new creed and the old creed are printed here:

The New Creed.

"I believe in God the Father, Maker of heaven and earth:

And in Jesus Christ his Son our Lord: Who was born of Joseph and Mary: Suffered under Pontius Pilate, Was crucified, dead, and buried: He went into the place of departed spirits. The third day His spirit rose again from the deade: He passed over into the spiritual world, where he took the place of honor and power; from thence he shall come to judge the quick and the dead.

I believe in the Holy Ghost; the holy Protestant church; the essential oneness of all the churches of Christ; the Forgiveness of sins, the Resurrection of the spirit; and the Life Everlasting. Amen.

The Old Creed.

I believe in God the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth;

And in Jesus Christ his only Son our Lord: Who was conceived by the Holy Ghost, Born of the Virgin Mary: Suffered under Pontius Pilate, Was crucified, dead and buried: He descended into hell: The third day he rose again from the dead: He ascended into heaven. And sitteth on the right hand of God and Father Almighty: from thence he shall come to judge the quick and the dead.

I believe in the Holy Ghost; the holy Catholic Church; the Communion of Saints: the Forgiveness of sins: the Resurrection of the body: And the Life everlasting. Amen.

New Creed Simpler.

"Unfortunately the new creed is no shorter than the old; but, better than that, it is simpler, and contains nothing that could give offense to any intelligent person in touch with the movements of modern thought.

"If a new creed, why not also a new church, a sort of panprotestant church? There need be no bishops in this new church, as bishops are not necessary for the existence of a true church. Thus one of the great obstacles in the path of christian unity would be removed.

"Moreover the new church could compile a new prayer book. The word 'priest' would of course be eliminated as the designation of a christian minister, and all traces of sacerdotalism would be expunged from the ordinal. The preface to the ordinal might well be revised so as to remove the impression that the three-fold ministry of bishops, priests and deacons has existed from the beginning in the church; and that Episcopal consecration or ordination is in any way essential to a valid ministry.

"The order for the administration of the holy communion could be made over so that there would be no suspicion that the bread and wine readily become the body and blood of Christ, or that there is anything in the nature of a sacrifice in this rite. The word 'altar' should of course be stricken out wherever found. The order that the people should devoutly kneel when they received holy communion should be omitted, as it encourages a belief in the real presence. The rubrics requiring all notices to be given out after the Nicene creed and the sermon to be preached at this time should be transferred to the office of morning prayer, as in their present position they imply that the holy communion should be the chief parochial act of worship at which the whole congregation should be present. The rubric which says that none are to be admitted to the holy communion until they are confirmed or ready and desirous to be confirmed should of course be dropped, as it might be interpreted to mean that members of the various denominations are excluded from communion.

Why Not New Bible?

"And if a new prayer book, why not a new bible? All passages which tell of the performance of miracles, whether in the new testament or the old, should be left out. The accounts of the virgin birth of our Lord in St. Matthew and St. Luke, as well as the stories of our Lord's resurrection in all the gospels' should be revised or omitted altogether,—according to the findings of modern criticism. The gospel of St. John might be dropped out altogether, as it is late and unauthentic. The espitsles of St. Paul would also need rather vigorous revision. Thus we should have a bible in harmony with the new prayer book and the new creed. A table of lessons could be drawn up for use in the new church, which would not need frequent revision."

STRANGE CONTRASTS FOUND IN AUSTRIA

Dual Monarchy is Filled With Many Startling Contradictions.

Austria Hungary, toward which the eyes of the world are now turned because of the recent assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand, heir to the throne of the dual monarcy and his consort, the Duches sof Hohenberg, is a land of strange contrast, according to a statement issued by the National Geographic Society, at Washington, D. C.

"In spite of its important position, both geographically and politically, but few people realize exactly what they mean when they speak of Austria-Hungary, and to many the words Austria and Hungary seem interchangeable terms for the same country," reads the statement. "What, then, is Austria, what is Hungray and why are they always bracketed together?

"The Austrian Empire is a constitutional monarchy formed of three kingdoms, Bohemia, Galicia and Dalmatia, two archduchies, Upper and Lower Austria, and a collection of duchies, countships, and margraves of princely rank; all of them united in the person of the Emperor Francis Joseph. The adjacent and entirely independent Kingdom of Hungary, in addition to Hungary proper, includes Croatia, Slavonia and Transylvania, 'countries formerly independent, but now, through intermarriage, conquest and inheritance, all possessions of the Apostolic King of Hungary, who happens by a purely historic chance to be also sovereign of the Empire of Austria. The possession of a unifying link in the person of their common ruler has led to the Ausgleich, or 'Compromise,' whereby the two countries, for mutual convenience, have agreed to join forces in maintaining joint diplomatic and naval and military services. Beyond this the two countries are entirely independent, each having its own constitution, legisiature and administration.

"No country in Europe, except only Hungary, contains within its borders so many diverse nations and tongues as the Austrian Empire. Each of the three great ethnic stocks of Europe is represented—the Latin, the German and the Slav, with the latter predominating, as to it belong 15 out of the 26 million people inhabiting the Empire. The Hungarian, or more properly, the Magyar, is perhaps the keenest patriot in Europe, and he manifests his enthusiasm by seeking to impose his language and customs upon the Slavonic fellow-citizens with a persistence that neither opposition nor passive resistance can diminish.

"In these lands, so mixed in nationality and language, there is no less a variety of religion; Roman Catholics preponderate, but Greek Orthodox, Uniat Greeks, Lutherans, Calvinists, Jews, and even Armenian Gregorians, are found within their borders. The customs-union between Austria and Hungary has rendered these countries a commercial unit; but, roughly speaking, Hungary is the agricultural and pastoral country, while Austria is industrial. Hungary is also the richest country in Europe in mineral deposits, the range of which is singularly wide. Austria is, after Switzerland, the most mountainous region in Europe, more than four-fifths of her vast territory being over 600 feet above sea level. Mountain-climbing is the great national game, like baseball in the United States. Old, young, middle-aged, all take a keen interest in it. Even Emperor Francis Joseph is an enthusiastic mountaineer at more than 80 years of age. In his time he has scaled most of the great peaks of his country.

"Vienna, the Imperial City, the capital of Austria, owns her own electric and gas light, street railways and omnibuses, ice manufacturing plant, warehouses, stock yards, brewery, wine cellar, all the pawnshops and even the undertaking establishments. Budapest, the capital of Hungary, formerly two cities, Buda and Pest, is Paris, Vienna and London in one, a combination of the gayeties of the capitals of the world, with a little distinctive Hungarian paprica spice thrown in.

"Even in the remotest corners of Austria-Hungary the strong arm of the law is ever present, the river stretches and the back country being policed by a heavily armed contabulary."

Consuls As Educators

That many of our diplomatic and consular representatives abroad are rendering a real service in obtaining information on foreign educational movements is the belief of the United States Bureau of Education. The Bureau acknowledges that it counts on the diplomatic and consular service for a considerable part of the matter on foreign schools it publishes every year for the sake of American school men who cannot go abroad but who need to know what other countries are doing educationally. By special arrangement with the Department of State the Bureau of Education receives all reports forwarded by consuls or other diplomatic agents on educational subjects.

Many of these reports supplement admirably the official documents obtainable. Recently Ambassador Joseph E. Willard furnished the Bureau with a statement of educational conditions in Spain, which contained interesting references to the character of university instruction, especially in medicine. The report shows not only a discriminating knowledge of educational requirements generally, but a special knowledge of educational conditions in Spain.

Some of the most useful material in the field of vocational education has been furnished through consular advices. Bulletin 56, 1913, of the Bureau of Education contained statements on industrial education by consuls at Erfurt, Nuremberg, Frankfort, and Cologne. The article by Ralph C. Busser, consul at Erfurt, on "The System of Industrial Schooling in Germany," is considered one of the best summaries of the subject ever published, and has proved particularly useful to American school authorities considering the establishment of systems of industrial education. The other articles in this bulletin are special reports on schools for builders, courses for "master-craftsmen," the Trade Institute at Cologne, and schools for fruit growing.

Consuls in England and Scotland are sending special information on the social welfare work that is now a prominent feature of school activity in those countries. Much of this material is so new it has scarcely begun to find its way into printed reports. Some of the consuls specialize in educational subjects in which they are most interested. Thus, at Stavanger, Norway, the United States consulate is especially keen on furnishing information about school extension work that is one of the characteristics of education in Scandinavian countries.

In Central and South America, United States consuls keep the Bureau informed of changes in educational policy as indicated in presidential messages, decrees, etc. Much of this information throws light on current American problems.

It has often been urged in the past that each consulate have an "educational attache" to report on educational matters, but in the opinion of the Bureau of Education officials the consuls themselves and their subordinates are fully qualified to keep the United States informed on important educational work abroad. Representatives of the Bureau of Education who have recently gone to Germany, Switzerland, Denmark, and the British Isles report that they found not only the courteous helpfulness that would be expected in agents of our government, but frequently, in addition, a special knowledge of the educational situation in the countries for which information was desired.

Dinner Stories

A boy was carrying home a basket of eggs when a man ran into him and knocked him down. The basket struck the ground with a kind of soft crash, and the man said:

"Dear me, I hope none of your eggs is broken."

"Oh, no," said the boy as he looked under the basket lid, "only bent."

Senator Bacon, apropos of Mexico, said at a Washington luncheon: "In foreign relations diplomacy is essential—clever, even brilliant diplomacy, like that of the young man at the bazar.

"'Why don't you buy something at my booth?' a girl pouted, as this young man took leave of her without spending any money.

"'Well, you see,' he answered, 'it's my rule at these functions only to buy from the homely girls. They find it so much more difficult to make sales.'

"'Oh,' said she, in a mollified tone, and she blushed her pleasure.

"The young man used this dodge at every booth in the bazar."

The man in the automobile duster and goggles confronted an artist painting a picture by the roadside.

"Say," said the motorist, "I'll give you five dollars for that picture just as it is. Don't put another stroke to it."

"I am really very flattered by your offer," replied the artist, "but why not wait until the picture is finished?"

"Can't. I need the canvas to mend a busted tire with."

Discouragement Fatal.

The mood of discouragement is a dangerous mood. In it we are liable to do any sort of reckless thing. Discouragement is most terrible when it becomes despair, and each of us faces the possibility of being plunged into it. Unless we have the right kind of strength the possible adversities of life may be too much for us.

CONDITION OF ROADS GIVEN IN BULLETIN

"The following is a daily bulletin of state roads under process of construction. All persons traveling over the roads in this list, reported as not being completed, do so at their own risk. Parties unduly trespassing on these highways or in any way damaging newly laid macadam are subject to fine and liable for damages and will be prosecuted. Our workmen are ready to co-operate with the public in every way possible, and we ask the same in return. Full crews are on every job and the work will be hastened as much as possible, consistent with best interests of the work. Much trouble and inconvenience will be avoided on both sides if due attention is paid to the guide in the following bulletin."

CHARLES E. MOORE,
County Highway Commissioner.

The road running directly between Milton and Milton Junction is closed for repairs. Also, the highway between Janesville and Milton Junction, at Milton and Harmony, respectively, are torn up. Travelers are requested to use the direct Janesville to Milton road for the present.

The state road between Milton and Indian Ford is closed at the present time, while the Janesville-Indian Ford highway is entirely completed and open to the traveling public. The Janesville-Evansville road is torn up at Porter and Union. The best overland route is to take the Magnolia road in place of the Madison thoroughfare.

In the town of Spring Valley, the Orfordville-Newark road is torn up for repairs. Also, the highway between Footville and Brodhead is undergoing repairs. The Orfordville-Brodhead road has been turned open to travel after a new filling.

For all travel between Janesville and Beloit, Mr. Moore urges that travelers pursue the Afton course west of Rock river. The eastern thoroughfare is in no condition for travel at Happy Hollow, where a new bridge is being constructed. Work south of Yost park has been suspended. In dry weather travel is only fair, but the road is passable to travel.

It was put on the market fifty years ago especially to satisfy the tobacco hungry man. It has filled the bill.

Firemen, policemen, out-of-doors men, two fisted men in general, all say STANDARD satisfies. Once they start using STANDARD they cannot get the same satisfaction out of any other brand.

STANDARD

Going into the Maine woods last summer naked, weaponless, companionless and without food or fire, Joseph Knowles lived as a primitive man for two months.

How he secured food and fire, procured clothing, shoes and weapons and so greatly improved his health that his physical measurements compare favorably with those of Sandow forms one of the most interesting human documents ever published.

DEMOCRACY'S BATTLE.

It is going to be a battle royal between the two factions of the democratic party in Wisconsin from now until after the September primaries and then—well, then it looks as though there was going to be a wider breech than ever. With some five hundred democrats assembled in Milwaukee endorsing a platform which demands reforms in state financial affairs, the abolition of the university as a political agent, and then praising the Wilson administration and the Bryan doctrines, endorsing Kearney of Racine for United States senator and Judge Karel of Milwaukee for governor, one state ticket was launched. By formal announcement Paul Husting of Mayville and John A. Aylward of Madison are in the field as opposing candidates for the senate and governorship.

If the Karel-Kearney crowd expected republican support to help them through their fight they made the mistake of endorsing the acts of the Wilson administration in toto. Of course as democrats they really could not reasonably be expected to do otherwise, but it will be a pretty hard pill for any self-respecting republican to walk to the polls and cast his ballot for a ticket standing upon such a platform in view of the existing conditions throughout the business world.

That Aylward would make an announcement of some sort was expected, but one hardly expected a man seeking public office to make a bitter personal attack upon his opponent, such as appeared in his formal declaration of principles. It was not proper or fitting and will not materially aid his cause, while it is certain to re-act later in the campaign against him should he be successful at the primaries.

At present the democratic party is split asunder wider than is the republican organization. It is to be war to the bitter end and the fighting men are about evenly divided. The Aylward faction has the advantage of federal patronage, as handled by Davies, Wilson's personal representative in Wisconsin, and it also has the friendly offices of the La Follette leaders if past actions can be taken into consideration. On the other hand, Karel will have the solid anti-Aylward support in the democratic party and possibly a good share of the non-partisan organization, if the republican members can swallow the Wilson portion of the platform.

With the republican party divided against itself it will keep the real factionists of both parties in their own party caucuses at the September primaries so it will be a real test of strength on both sides, and when the results are known there will doubtless be a new alignment of forces on both the republican and democratic sides of the political fences. It, however, looks as though the split in the democratic ranks means a republican sweep of the state this fall if the right men are nominated—men who stand for something beside experiments and costly inroads into the pocketbooks of the voters and taxpayers to suit their convenience.

It would look as though the time were ripe for a man of sufficient strength to command the respect of the voters of the state. A man of enough prominence to stand head and shoulders above the present list of candidates, to announce his candidacy and rally to his support the thinking men of the state, regardless of party affiliation, to insure a business administration at Madison and the doing away of the many useless commissions that bid fair to throttle the state.

QUIET IN ULSTER.

The Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin says that the inconsistency of the Ulster position lies in this—that Ulster through Sir Edward Carson demands exemption from the provisions of the Irish home rule bill, laying down the ultimatum "Exemption or fight." This is to say that she is for her affairs being governed by acts of the British parliament. Yet it is an act of the British parliament that has decreed home rule for Ireland, of which Ulster is a part.

The Ulster men continue their campaign of bluster, with the object of gaining all the concessions they can from patriots willing to allow a great deal to avoid civil war; but as time goes on the contingency of civil war growing out of the Ulster imbroglio seems more and more improbable. The Ulstermen from the first have been depending upon the influence of a show of force and a simulation of anger. They have been acting the part of the spoiled boy who is given a large piece of cake by his indulgent parents to keep him quiet. But the trick has been carried so far and has become so obvious that it is not likely to be of further efficacy.

The speech of Sir Edward at the celebration of the Battle of the Boyne, addressed to a large crowd of Orangemen who marched on Monday from Belfast to Drumbeg was in form a defiance of the government—a final notification that if it would not totally exclude Ulster from the operation of home rule, it must come out and fight.

From London it is reported that there is a growing confidence on both sides that there will be no war in Ulster, but a compromise satisfactory to both sides. Premier Asquith has informed the house of commons that the present session of parliament will come to an end about the close of August. There is likely to be no quarrel with that.

While the Orangemen were parading in Belfast there was in progress in Switzerland a celebration that recalled the early influence of Ireland in the spreading of Christian civilizatoin. The thirteen hundredth anniversary of the foundation of the Benedictine abbey in Grisons by Saint Sigisbert was celebrated with great enthusiasm and reverence. Saint Sigisbert was an Irish monk who in 614, as a dispatch from Disentis recalls, began his work of converting the wild hunters of the Alpine forest. The abbey is reputed to be the oldest in the world, except one in Rome.

CALLS IT POLITICS.

The Wall Street Journal calls the report of the interstate commerce commission on the New Haven road conditions a political plot. They believe that Folk is playing a sharp game to get some political capital out of the report and taking up the whole report says:

"It would be stupid to call the New Haven report undignified. This would not express what it means to every holder of United States railroad securities.

"It would be inconceivable for a really radicial body to hand down such a decision. The diction indicates that it might have been written for the yellowest of yellow journals, or the magazines which seem to see their future in the destruction of the purchasing power upon which they subsist.

"There is no need for immediate analysis. The commissioners have gone out of their way to narrate crimes and shortcomings of railroads, from this single instance. But is there a single case in which they have put the stamp of their approval upon good railroad management? Do they seriously say that there is none?

"Are they fulfilling the functions committed to them when they leave the investor without hope, insinuating that everything he owns is rotten? Could they not, for once, instance a single road above reproach? The report on the New Haven is, in moral effect, an indictment of all American railroads. Is this what the commissioners meant?

"Washington has read the newspapers' lessons in constructive criticism. But the interstate commerce commissioners tear down, and build up nothing, although they have assumed the management of the railways. It is not they who are trying, by expensive experiment, to run railroads better. It is the investor and the great majority of railroad managements, doing the best they can with this handicap.

"There is nothing judicial or philosophic in this sort of work. The interstate commerce commission had a wonderful opportunity. It has allowed it to slip through its hands. Is it true that Mr. Folk wrote the report, and that he is allowed to use this 'exposure' means for a presidential campaign, like his election to the governorship of Missouri?"

◆

At last Huerta has left Mexico City. That is, the telegraphic dispatches so announce. What he is doing they have not made public yet.

◆

English markets of American securities are suffering through the actions of the administration and yet Wilson says the country is prosperous.

◆

The Milwaukee Journal can see no good in Dahl's candidacy for governor and in this they agree with a whole lot of republicans as well.

From the Hickeyville Clarion.

The congregation of the Hardshell church wanted to give the sexton something to let him know that his long years of service were appreciated and a church meeting was held for that purpose. After several speeches and much argument it was decided to give him the grass from the church lot to take home, after he had cut it. The sexton keeps a cow and this token of esteem will be highly appreciated by him.

Grandma Whipple's co-laborers at the feed mill, where she has the position of fireman, gathered at her home on the occasion of her ninety-seventh birthday anniversary one evening last week and presented her with a fine meerschaum pipe, the corncob she has used for the last seventeen years having become worn out. A pleasant time was had and the fellers who had contributed 25 cents apiece toward the pipe each got about a dollar's worth of food.

Mr. Anson Judson, our well known banker, has caused much comment by painting the two iron dogs in his front yard a brilliant green color. Gentlemen who have been going home from the Golden Nugget with packages have seen the green dogs and have rushed to the jag cure, regardless of expense.

Tooth Etiquette.

Do not take the teeth out and polish them during a banquet. This is not done in the best circles.

Do not carry the teeth in the tail pocket of your dress suit for you are liable to sit down on them and be severely bitten.

When you have to sneeze or cough go away by yourself in a dark corner and hold your hand over your mouth. You can never tell what will happen.

If your teeth click when you talk oil the frequently, for noisy teeth often disturb the neighbors and there is enough to keep them awake at night without that.

Do not carry the toothbrush in the upper vest pocket, for if you do people will know that you have not had your teeth very long.

The Good Old Days.

Some fellers talk of the good old days and wish that they would come back;
The ancient days of the one-hoss shays, when there wasn't no railroad track.
They were short on wealth, but were long on health, and they worked from mourn till night.
'Twas a strenyus game, when they staked a claim and hustled with all their might
Fer a bit to eat in the way of meat and a place fer to lay their heads
In the old log shacks full of holes and cracks, on their back-breakin' shake-down beds.
Let 'em sing the praise of the good old days in voices both glad and free,
But I'm bound to say that the present day is quite good enough for me.

MOVIE HEROINE WANTS A DIVORCE

Another movie heroine has grown weary of the matrimunial yoke. Kathlyn Williams, who played the leading role in "The Adventures of Kathlyn," will seek liberty through the divorce court this month. Fulfilling a Boyhood Dream.

Legend says that 20 years ago D. A. Madden, a Washington man living on the outskirts of Kent, sat on the bank of the Mississippi and viewed with envy a houseboat drifting down the river, which was occupied by two boys at one end and two caged alligators at the other, little thinking that he himself might some day possess a curio equal in curiosity to the rough-backed 'gator. He now owns a remarkable collection of mermaids, devil fish, lantern fish and other marine habitants that he has assembled during his trips about the country. He has just left for St. Paul, where he will realize his quaint desire of boyhood by embarking on a houseboat that will soon be off to New Orleans.

HE'S UNCLE SAM'S "HIGHEST" OFFICIAL

Charles Reintzel.

If the question of who is the highest official of the United States government were asked almost anyone anywhere would promptly answer "the president" and expect to go to the head of the class. But they wouldn't be right, that is, not in one sense. The highest government official in Washington is Charles Reintzel, the guard at the top of the Washington monument. His place is five hundred and fifty feet above the ground and he has held this high position for twenty-five years.

HIS 64-YEAR-OLD SON WILL WED AN AMERICAN HEIRESS

Duke of Grafton.

The Duke of Grafton is the father of the Earl of Euston, who is to marry Miss Edith Havemeyer, daughter of the sugar king. She will take precedence of all other American ladies that have married dukes.

The historic house of Grafton was created by King Charles II. The duke is ninety-three years old and a veteran of the Crimean war, in which he was badly wounded. The earl is sixty-four years old.

Working of Instinct.

A young man in Paris had lost his last sou at the gambling table. Not only was he without means, but he had lost a large sum belonging to his employer. He started for the Seine with the intention of drowning himself. On the way there was a great commotion, caused by the escape of a lion from a strolling menagerie. The animal came galloping down the street and people fled in every direction. Instantly the man who was seeking death climbed a lamp-post and clung to the top of it, trembling in every limb. When the animal was captured and the danger over he proceeded to the river and plunged in.

When Vapor is Dry.

It is a popular misconceptiop that aqueous vapor and ice are wet. They are in themselves dry, and become wet only when they turn to water. "So dry is aqueous vapor that it will dry any moist object that it comes in contact with," states an eminent authority, Mr. M. Mott-Smith. Superheated steam, before it condenses, is a dry gas. Ice feels wet if the temperature of the hand is sufficient to melt it; as ice it is dry.

POSTPONE HEARING UNTIL TWENTIETH

QUESTION OF PLACING ALL WIRES UNDERGROUND WITHIN CERTAIN RADIUS TO BE DECIDED LATER.

BROWN GETS LICENSE

Council Grants Present Police Officer Permit to Conduct Saloon on South River Street at Meeting.

Owing to the fact that officials of the Wisconsin Telephone company, located in Milwaukee, could not be present Tuesday when the proposed ordinance which would establish a zone in the business district where all wires must be run underground, the hearing on this important measure was postponed until Monday, July 20, at which time it is expected it will be taken up for consideration.

This proposed ordinance is most important to the citizens as a whole and the result of the hearing on the 20th will be watched with interest. It has been endorsed by business men generally throughout the city and is along the line that other cities are following at the present time as precaution against fires, where overhead wires are dangerous and for the general appearance of the city as a whole.

The council also settled the discussion as to who should have the saloon license at 51 South River street, the saloon formerly conducted by Louis Alwin, who was refused a license, by granting it to Sam Brown. George C. Courtney, who is said to have been interested with Alwin in the business, presented a petition with a number of signatures that he be granted the license, but the council held that this was impossible owing to his former interest in the property. Charles Swanson's application was faulty, no deposit having been made with the city treasurer as required by law.

Attorney M. O. Mouat, representing Jules Teubert, who had furnished the funds for Louis Alwin, declared it would be only just to grant the license to an applicant that had made tentative arrangements with Mr. Teubert for taking over the stock and lease. Attorney Mouat stated that Mr. Teubert or himself were unable to reach an arrangement with the applicants except Sam Brown. On the motion of Councilman Cummings, which was seconded by Councilman Goodman, the license was granted to Brown with the stipulation that Alwin, former owner, should not be employed by him in operating the saloon. The bonds were approved. Orders were then drawn on the city treasurer, payable to Seeman and Kueck, Frank Flanery and George Courtney for the license money which they had deposited.

Mayor Fathers read a correspondence relating to the second biennial conference of health officers which will be held in the assembly chambers at Madison, Wisconsin, July 16 and 17. It was declared that the municipality needs the help that could be gained from having a representative attending the conference, and Dr. S. B. Buckmaster, city health officer, was directed to attend as a delegate from this city. The letter received stated that Wisconsin was the healthiest state in the union, and it was possible to increase this valuable asset twenty per cent by united action.

A letter from the Commercial club thanking the city officials for kindness during the celebration of July fourth, and good will in turning over the streets, also for opening the public library and city hall for rest rooms which was appreciated by the members of the organization was read.

City Clerk J. P. Hammarlund was instructed to advertise for bids with samples for purchasing five hundred feet of five and one-half inch fire hose for use in the fire department. An order was drawn in favor of P. W. Ryan and son for balance due on contract for improving Garfield and Vista avenue, north. The petition of property owners to oil Mineral Point avenue between Washington and Terrace street was received and the work ordered.

The Sisters of Mercy's annual report of patients and cases attended at the hospital for the city was received, accepted and filed. Eleven cases were listed and the total bill amounted to $595.50. The report of Miss Elizabeth Joyce, for the month ending July 9 was accepted and filed. During June a total of twenty-four cases were under Miss Elizabeth Joyce's care, four of them being new ones. Ninety calls were made during the month and twenty-two patients were still under Miss Joyce's care. The resignation of Miss Agnes C. Anderson was laid on the table until the next meeting. The report of Chief of Police Champion for the month of June was accepted and filed.

INSPECT CITY SEWERS; REPAIRING CROSS WALKS

Superintendent of Streets P. J. Goodman had the street employes inspect the sewers through the greater part of the city within the last five days and repairs have been made on many of them. Several were found clogged and were at once cleaned out.

A gang of street employes were also directed to inspect and repair cross walks throughout the city and a number of men are at work complying with Councilman Goodman's orders. The council is awaiting what action the railroad companys will take over the order passed two weeks ago to replank and repair street railroad crossings.

RECEIVE FEW COMPLAINTS OVER TAX ASSESSMENTS

City Assessor Frank L. Smith reported that very few complaints have been made over this year's tax assesement and as yet no cases have been taken before the board of review except the complaint against the lowered assessment of the electric light company. Claims have been adjusted by Assessor Smith without bringing the matter before the board, who will remain in session until the books are closed. It is expected the assessment figures will be balanced sometime this week.

CONSTRUCTING GIANT GUN AT PANAMA CANAL.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, July 15.—A cannon which will shoot 16 miles! That is what the army will use to defend the Panama Canal. This giant gun will be the most powerful in the world. It will also fire the heaviest projectiles within its 16-mile range, it will be able to shoot with greatest accuracy any approaching foe.

There is still a year's work to be done to complete the mammouth cannon, which is to have a 16-inch bore. The Watervliet and Watertown arsenals will give it the finishing touches. An elevating groove will be cut in its breech at Watervliet. It will then be sent to Watertown to be installed in the immense gun carriage, which is nearing completion. It will be given "shock" test at Watertown and will be shipped afterward to Sandy Hook for a final test.

Progress in building the disapearing carriage for the great gun is being watched with the greatest interest by American and foreign army officers. Many nations will have representatives at the Sandy Hook for a final proving ground firing tests. Final tests at Sandy Hook of the 14-inch guns for the Canal fortifications are nearly completed. Ordinance officers are pleased with the remarkable record of accuracy by the guns in long firing.

SMASHES IN WINDOW; DENIES BEING DRUNK

Foreigner Breaks In Door Window to Peterson Residence But Denies Being Drunk.

Either Theodore Pushka, a Pole, who resides on Pleasant street, mistook his home or had the idea of wrecking the front door of the residence of Attorney E. H. Peterson, 314 Pleasant street, for last night, shortly after nine o'clock, Pushka smashed the front window of the door, and was only interrupted from entering the house by the arrival of Chief Champion who arrested the intruder.

When arraigned in the municipal court this morning Pushka plead not guilty to the charge of being drunk and disorderly. The more the court questioned Pushka, the more he insisted he was not drunk. He was unable to explain the presence of a quart bottle of whiskey found on his person or his actions at the Peterson residence. His case was set for Thursday morning and Pushka was committed to the county jail until his trial. A charge of housebreaking may be preferred against the man tomorrow.

G. McVicker, a farm laborer, drew thirty days in default of a fine of twenty-five dollars and costs for being drunk and disorderly. McVicker was arrested by Policeman Sam Brown at the Northwestern station, where it is alleged McVicker insulted several women. "I haven'5t got the money," plead McVicker, when the ne was given. "You have got the thirty days," replied Judge Maxfield.

Gus Hartstrum of Rockford, for the first time in his life, according to his testimony before Judge Maxfield, fell off the water wagon in Janesville yesterday. Hatstrum went to sleep on a downtown corner and when awakened by the "hot-foot" expressed his feelings in ultramarine language about the city police force in general. When brought into court the Rockford youth admitted his guilt and apologized for his conduct. His fine of five dollars and costs was paid.

BROWN WILL RESIGN FROM POLICE FORCE

Patrolman Sam Brown Offers Resignation to Fire and Police Commission Today.

This afternoon the resignation of Sam Brown, patrolman on the Janesville police force, was presented to the fire and police commission, which is to become effective at once. Mr. Brown is leaving the police department to enter the retail liquor business having been granted a license Tuesday afternoon. It is expected that a meeting of the fire and police commission will be called immediately to take action on the resignation.

The loss of Policeman Brown will be a severe one to the department, for he was considered one of the most efficient men on the force, being a capable officer in the discharge of his duty. The resigning officer has been employed on the Janesville police force for nearly seven years as a regular, during which time Brown served as night patrolman, desk sergeant and day man. Before his appointment on the department he served as night watchman, William Appleby, and sor six years was city marshal at Sharon.

What steps will be taken by the fire and police commission is not certain, but it is expected that a special officer will be appointed until such time as an examination will be held for applicants.

MRS. JAMES ZANIAS ENTERTAINED TODAY IN HONOR OF MISS GIASHON

A very pretty luncheon was given in the Apollo Hall this afternoon in honor of Miss Blanche Giashon of Detroit by Mrs. James Zanias. It was perhaps one of the handsomest affairs of its kind this season.

ALBANY MAN KILLED WHEN BRIDGE GIVES WAY WITH ENGINE

George Pryce Crushed to Death In Accident at Allen's Creek Bridge Tuesday afternoon.

Albany, July 15.—George Pryce, age 55 years, a resident of this village, met instant death yesterday afternoon shortly after four o'clock when a traction engine crashed through the Allen's Creek bridge and caught Pryce beneath the tender and crushed his life out. Three others, Albert Harvey, Harry Flora and Ray Schaffer escaped by jumping from the engine as it turned over into the creek bed after the arches of the structure gave way beneath the weight of the outfit, the four men were taking across the bridge.

Pryce was employed on the gang constructing county roads and together with the other workmen were taking the equipment north of Albany. On reaching the wooden bridge at Allen's creek, about two miles north of the village, the men started to run the engine tender and van across the narrow structure. The tender caught on the sides of the bridge and the four men attempted to force the wagon out of the tight place. While in this operation both arches gave way and dropped the engine and van to the creek bed, three or four feet distance. Pryce had been using a plank in attempting to move the van and before he could jump to safety was caught under the tender of the engine which fell full force upon him, causing almost instant death.

The other three men were able to jump clear of the falling equipment and bridge and escaped serious injury. Fred Morton was the first to reach Pryce and with the help dragged the dead man from beneath the debris. The center part of the bridge had settled down and both the engine and tender tipped over into the creek.

The victim of the accident leaves a wife and a married son, who reside in Albany.

WHITE SCORES K. O. OVER STAN. YOAKUM

Stanley Yoakum Given Bad Lacing by White Who Lands Knockout in the 19th Round.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Denver Colorado., July 15.—Charley White stepped one notch nearer a math with Freddie Welsh, British lightweight champion last night when the Chicacgo boy knocked out Stanley Yoakum, the "Cave Man" at Denver in the nineteenth round of the hardest fighting ever witnessed in Denver.

A hard right to the jaw sent Yoakum for the count of seven. Successive rights and lefts to the jaw and kidneys put him down for the count.

After the twelfth round it was apparent that Yoakum had not the slightest chance. However, he stood the punishment of successive rights and lefts to the jaw and an occasional blow in the region of the kidneys, any of which would have floored an ordinary fighter.

A crowd of 10,000 witnessed the bout. This meant a house of at least $14,000. This was to be White's share win, lose or draw. A majority of the audience were visiting Elks. Several women were scattered throughout the hall.

When the fighters were introduced it was announced that the fight was to be for the lightweight championship of America.

LIPTON'S CHALLENGER WILL DEPART FOR U. S. ON NEXT SATURDAY

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Gosport, Eng., July 15.—Everything is ready for the departure on July 18 for the United States of Shamrock IV, Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger for the American cup, and Sir Thomas' steam yacht, Erin, is waiting to convoy her across the Atlantic.

"Shamrock IV has done all that has been asked of her," is the final word of Chas. E. Nicholson, the designer. He admits, however, that the trial boat was in no way satisfactory as the type of opponent which would enable yachtsmen accurately to gauge Shamrock IV's chances of lifting the cup.

CHI-FEDS WERE DEFEATED IN FIRST GAME OF SEASON

In the first game of the season among the younger set of Janesville's baseball fans the Orchard Wild Cats defeated the Chi-Fed, Jr., by the close score of 13 to 12. Fox, slab artist for the Wild Cats, whiffed twelve and only allowed two to reach first base on balls. The Wild Cats have challenged any team of their size in the city to a match.

Prominent ringsiders and other fight fans are beginning to protest that the fight game today is getting to be nothing better than a moving picture rehearsal. They claim that the moving picture men are crabbing the game and that so eager are the fighters to get all they can out of the movie end of it that they will do anything to insure the success of the film, even though it be at the expense of the fight. Another thing: It seems to be making the fighters too ladylike and genteel. Gentility is hot stuff, of course, and it's nice to be cultured, but the average fight fan doesn't care for it in his fighter. Gunboat Smith has become quite a hit in London and he's having regular "at homes" on which occasion he dudes up like a millionaire's daughter in dress suit and pleated front. Lots of fight fans will be mad when they hear that. And then at the Johnson-Moran bout, Carpentier, the Frenchman who refereed, appeared in a pair of lovely pale flannel tennis trousers. Is that right in the fight ring? Sooner or later, it is feared they'll serve nut sundaes between every five rounds.

Now that Johnny Evers is free of managerial worries he seems to be getting fat. Players declare that he is ever so much more amiable than he used to be and he is being less frequently called the "human crab." "I'm feeling younger every day," said Johnny of late. 'After a ball game I can go back to the hotel carefree and without a worry about the morrow. It used to be that I was forever fretting at the close of one game about the next. None of that for me again. I've got an $18,000 home and money in the bank. No more managing for Johnny.

Another old star of the diamond has passed away. Ossie Schreckengost, catcher and one-time Rube Waddell's famed battery-mate, died in a hospital last week. He was about forty and had suffered a nervous decline together with a complication of diseases. In his prime he was one of the greatest catchers the game had ever seen. And he had outlived his old teammate only a few months, Waddell dying just last March.

Charlie Herzog of the Reds has signed Harry La Ross, an outfielder from Battle Creek. La Ross will add a bit of speed to the Cincinnati outfit. He leads his league in stolen bases and is said to be a wonder at the dash in track athletics. He is also a long distance thrower of great cleverness, having won many a title in this event.

Lear, a pitching recruit from Princeton with Cincinnati, is being regarded as a sure-enough comer. Tol Penderton, another Princeton boy, is to join the Reds, and if he shows the speed in big leagues circles that he did in school he should easily find a place on the Red payroll.

The Cleveland Naps have called in Morton, a pitcher they had farmed out with Waterbury. In the last game he pitched in the Eastern Association he fanned fifteen batters and didn't give them a hit.

Lee Magee had been making a pretty record at the bat when he was suspended by Umpire Quigley. For sixteen games straight he had hit safely at least once and more often several times.

Carlyle and Ceremony.

Thomas Carlyle and his wife were so wedding-frightened that it is sad to think of it. EAST SIDE GOLFERS WIN MORGAN CUP; DANCE IN EVENING

Festivities at Sinnissippi Links Were Many On Tuesday. Score of Match Was 19 to 17.

Festivities at the Sinnissippi golf links yesterday were many. The biggest event of the day was the match game in the afternoon between teams picked from the east and west sides of the city. The game proved very interesting, the east siders carrying off the honors, with the Morgan trophy cup, by a score of 19 to 17.

At three o'clock in the afternoon, during which time the match was being held on the links, the ladies of the club enjoyed the weekly bridge game, Mrs. Sue Wilcox capturing first prize, the consolation present going to Mrs. Stanley Tallman.

Following the afternoon festivities, a dinner came at six-thirty, which was served on the porch.

The dance, which commenced about nine o'clock in the evening, was the concluding event of the day, and was made up of twelve numbers forming a cotillion program. This affair was by for the most pretentious thus far attempted this year, some thirty couples taking part. The prizes offered by William Jerome Ruger, Jr., to the couple introducing the newest steps, went to Miss Margaret Doty and Frank Blodgett, Jr., who displayed clever glides, unknown in this city. The prize was presented them at the close of the evening's program.

The various figures were descriptive of the music which was played. As in the case of the first dance, in which the orchestra played "Who Paid the Rent For Mrs. Rip Van Winkle," Al Schaller as Mr. Rip Van Winkle and Miss Clara Blodgett, as his wife, offered a clever takeoff as their part of the program. Mrs. A. J. Harris was the doll in the doll figure. The men's favors were pink tissue paper caps and flowers, while aprons and bows of pink tissue were the favors of the ladies.

During the Moon-Bow figure dance various colored lights were flashed on, forming a very handsome effect. When the Red Devil figure came around, all lights were turned off with the exception of the red ones. The program of numbers as given are as follows:

Who Paid the Rent For Mrs. Rip Van Winkle—Grand March Figure.
Beautiful Dreams I Am Dreaming—Moon-Bow Figure.
When You're All Dressed Up—Men Favor.
Dancing Around—Women Favor.
At the Devil's Ball—Red Devil Figure.
Where Did You Get That Girl—Men Favor.
Pupppchen, My Little Doll That's You—Doll Figure.
Some Boy—Women Favor.
When the Angelus Is Ringing—Bell Figure.
On the Road to Mexico—Circle Dance.
Some Smoke—Cut In Dance.
Argentine Tango.

AMUSEMENTS

THE APOLLO.

It was really more amusing to review the circus parade of July 4th in moving pictures last night at the Apollo than to see the original. The pictures taken of Janesville were wonderfully clear and distinct, and hundreds of people last night found out how they look as movie actors and actresses. Manager Zanias and family were warmly applauded when the exterior of the Apollo was shown, for his enterprise in presenting to the public these pictures. They will be shown again tonight.

Beginning Thursday a fine vaudeville bill will be offered for the balance of the week.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

MOLLY ON HOUSES.

"THERE'S a house I could love," said Molly-the-Stenographer-Lady, pointing to a little white cottage with a wistaria vine climbing up on the side and a 10x15 patch of intensive vegetable garden in the rear.

The Wants-to-be-Cynic laughed. Fair Helen's face launched a thousand ships. The cynic's laugh launched a thousand words—or thereabouts.

"You seem to think it's amusing to love a house," Molly warmly took up the cudgels, "but I don't see why. When I come to have a home of my own I'm not going to think only about closets, and conveniences and heating. I'm going to have a house I can love. I wouldn't want to marry a man I didn't love just because he had all conveniences, and if I'm going to live in a home I'll see just as much of it as I would of my husband, so I want to be able to love that too.

"Maybe I'll appreciate conveniences and closets when I'm a little older? Oh, I do now, but I don't think they are enough to make a house lovable any more than being honest and coming home evenings would be enough alone to make a man lovable. It's the little quirks in people's characters that make you love them, and I think it would be that way with a house. What was that you were reading me the other day? I remember, 'she had all of the virtues he hated and none of the faults he loved'. Well I think a house might be like that. Very convenient and right, but with none of the little individualities which we grow to love.

"Of course, everybody wouldn't love the same house any more than all men fall in love with the same woman, fortunately. It's a matter of taste, just liking dark people or light people. I love that little cottage because it's white and because it has the kind of lines I like. You may laugh if you want to (defiantly addressed to the Wants-to-be-Cynic), but I take as much pleasure in a house with perfect Colonial lines and a big chimney in the center or one at each end as a man does in a woman with a beautiful figure.

"Those narrow, pointed-roofed houses that they built about thirty or forty years ago, with their doors on one side and the narrow halls and the prim, respectable, middleclass look, I almost hate. I know without going in that they have black walnut furniture and marble mantels. And I feel towards them just the way I do towards perfectly respectable, uninteresting, narrow-minded people.

"I could live in such a house if I had to, but I couldn't love it and I couldn't be so happy in it. Yes (to the Author-Man's-Wife), I know a wistaria vine wouldn't take the place of set tubs, nor an open fireplace of a good gas range, and maybe when I grow older I shall feel differently, but just now I can't see that a good gas range and set tubs would satisfy the part of me that wants a wistaria vine and an open fireplace. I hope to have all four, but if I have to choose I'm not at all sure it'll be the set tubs and the gas range. There are conveniences for the soul as well as for the body, you know."

The Author-Man's-Wife sniffed audibly, but under his breath—way down under his breath—I thought I heard the Author Man say, "bless her heart."

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

To clean chiffon, allow it to stand in a weak solution of cold, soapy water a few minutes, after which shake it up and down without rubbing. Rinse well, dry and iron with a moderately hot iron.

Pickles may be kept from becoming moldy by laying a little bag of mustard on the top of the pickle jar.

Sal-ammoniac will clean a furred kettle. Fill the kettle with cold water, add a little sal-ammoniac to it and boil. All the fur will dissolve. Rinse the kettle well afterwards.

To prevent "runs" and "ladders" in stockings sew a piece of tape to the top of the stocking to hold the suspenders. This lengthens the life of the stocking and prevents ladders.

Any other berries may be used in their season.

Blackberry Jelly — Wash blackberries; take one-fourth part of water to amount of blackberries; boil fifteen minutes; strain through jelly bag; add one cup of sugar to each cup of juice; then boil and skim for thirty minutes; then pour in jelly glass; when cold put paraffin over top.

Raspberry-Currant Jelly — Wash berries and currants, then put them in a preserving kettle with enough water to cover them and boil twenty minutes; put in a jelly bag and let drip over night; in the morning take equal parts of juice and sugar, cup of mashed berries add one quart for cup; boil twenty minutes.

Blackberry Wine—To one gallon boiling water. Let stand twenty-four hours, strain and measure. Add three quarts water and two pounds brown sugar to each gallon of juice. Mix well and turn into a clean keg or crock. Set in a very cool place. Let stand until fermentation ceases. Do not cork or cover closely or the keg will burst. Bottle after fermentation stops. Seal and store in a cool place. This wine is of medicinal strength.

Plum Jelly—Put the plums, which may be either damsons, red or beach plums, into the preserving kettle, with water to cover; heat slowly and simmer until the plums will mash readily; then turn into a flannel jelly bag and drip until the pulp is dry; boil juice twenty minutes and skim; remove from fire, measure and return to fire. As soon as it boils again add as many bowls of sugar as you have of juice and boil fifteen to twenty minutts; pour in glasses.

LESSONS IN DOMESTIC SCIENCE

Prepared by the AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT WASHINGTON D. C.

IMPORTANCE OF CLEANLINESS.

Cleanliness in the care of food means not only the absence of visible dirt, but freedom from undesirable organisms; and from worms and parasites. If food is exposed to dirt at any stage of its preparation, disease germs and other dangerous substances can easily get in. The bacteria of typhoid fever sometimes find their way into drinking water and oysters, and those of typhoid and scarlet fevers and diphtheria into milk. Celery and lettuce grown in soil containing typhoid germs have been thought to convey this disease. Food materials may also contain parasites, like tapeworm or trichinae in meat. Vegetables and fruits may become contaminated with eggs of numerous parasites from the fertilizers applied to them. Raw fruits and vegetables should always be thoroughly washed before serving, if there is any doubt as to their cleanliness. If the food is sufficiently heated in cooking all organisms are killed.

Sometimes food undergoes decomposition causing illness when eaten usually called ptomaine poisoning though it is probably more often a poisoning due to certain micro-organisms accidentally present in the food and taken into the body with it. Poisoning by animal and vegetable foods, both have been caused in this way. Cooking sterilizes food, but it can become contaminated after it is cooked. Every effort should be made to secure clean food, and to make sure it remains clean after we get it. The importance of this can hardly be overestimated.

In some cases it has been found that foods are adulterated with compounds injurious to health, but adulteration in which harmless articles of inferior cost or quality are added is more common.

Attractive and suitable ways of serving food have a usefulness beyond their aesthetic value. Everyone knows that a feeble appetite is often tempted by a tastefully garnished dish, when the same material carelessly served would seem quite unpalatable.

All persons are alike in that they must have protein for the building and repair of the body, and fats and carbohydrates to furnish it with heat and energy, but individuals differ in the amounts and proportions they require. An average man at moderately active work, as a carpenter or a mason, needs more food than a man at sedentary employment. The demands for food are variable, increasing or decreasing with the increase or decrease of muscular work, or as the other needs of the person change.

The theory is advanced from time to time that one or two meals a day are preferable to the three commonly served in this country. If the same amount of food is to be eaten it is hard to see the advantage of two very hearty meals over three ordinary ones. Moderate quantities of food taken at moderate intervals are apparently more easily and completely digested than larger quantities taken at long intervals. If the food ordinarily taken is considered excessive, and the aim is simply to reduce the amount, it would seem more sensible to make all meals lighter than to leave one out. The very fact that the custom of eating a number of meals a day has so long been almost universal indicates that it must have some advantages which instinct, based upon experience, approves and justifies.

The cheapest food is that which supplies the most nutriment for the least money. The most economical food is that which is the cheapest and at the same time best adapted to the needs of the body.

Peggy & Company

XIX.

Brother Tom Suggests That Peggy May Well Continue Her Efforts to Be Helpful.

The day of mother's arrival home brought with its dawn a sense of deep relief to Peggy.

That she would be no longer obliged to conduct fearful and wonderful culinary experiments in the kitchen was not the least of her felicities. With the removal of household responsibilities she felt gloriously unfettered—like a merry little bird, you might say, freed from its cruel cage and winging away to the heights of gay abandon.

Or so it seemed to Tom at least. He being not a heedless eye, he was able to detect in Peggy's mood and manner every evidence of restrained, though none the less hearty, rejoicing. Whereupon he ventured some advice, starting somewhat in this fashion:

"I hope you haven't acquired the hunch, dear sister, that mother's return will make it no longer necessary for you to lift a hand about the house.

"Though it is true that she has benefited no little by her brief sojourn at the sanitarium and adjacent environs, she is yet scarcely strong enough to resume at once her arduous domestic tasks. That is to say, she isn't going to pitch in at once and do all the dishes herself. Do you assimilate the gist of that?

"Another thing. You will be obliged to prepare lunch today and of course we want to greet mother as pleasantly as we can. While away mother has learned from our letters that the progress you have made in domestic science is nothing short of amazing. At this moment as the train speeds her homeward she is no doubt wrapped in anticipation of the lovely lunch you will have ready for her.

"I am willing to wager that a real lusty teamster in the full bloom of health might be able to negotiate one of your meals without sustaining internal injuries. It would be rash and tactless, however, to try it on mother. Let us bend our wits to this and evolve a plan."

Peggy listened quietly throughout, regarding her brother all the while with a smile most ineffably sweet. If there was a dash of gentle irony in the utterances of Tom there was a world of it in Peggy's look. However, it was agreed that they repair to a delicatessen shop, selecting only the most nutritious and digestible foods. And the lunch when finally presented was really quite tempting.

Mother, overjoyed at what seemed to be Peggy's advancement, showered her daughter with flattery.

And Tom, who was drinking at the moment, alarmed them all with a fit of violent choking.

Heart and Home Problems

BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you please give me a real good recipe for preserivng strawberries, one that will not make the berries turn white? Please give me directions in full, for I am inexperienced.

A READER.

I am afraid this will reach you too late for this season, but you can save the recipe for next year.

Select firm, dark red fruit, hull, wash and drain. I wash my berries in a large dish pan, so that all sand falls to bottom of pan, then I lift them out with a wire stariner and drain them in collander.

Sterilize your fruit jars by laying them on their sides in a pan of cold water covering the jars and bring slowly to boiling point. If you have a steamer, put them in the steamer and steam thoroughly.

While the jars are sterilizing make the syrup—one pint sugar to one pint water. Heat slowly, stirring till sugar is dissolved, then boil ten minutes without stirring (one and one-half pints sugar make enough syrup for two quart cans of berries).

Now fill the sterilized jars with the drained berries, pour over the hot syrup till it overflows and put on the tops TIGHT.

Have your wash boiler ready, with cloths or pieces of wood on the bottom on which to set the jars (they must not touch each other). Put this on the stove, fill boiler with hot water till it reaches the covers of jars, put on boiler cover (to retain steam. and boil twenty minutes. You can let the jars stay in the boiler until cool enough to handle, if you like, then take out the jars, tighten covers and lay on their sides for a few days, rolling them back and forth several times a day, so the berries will not come to the top of the jar.

I think you will like your berries put up in this fashion.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of sixteen years. Am I too young to have boys bring me home from the show, about six blocks from our house, once a week?

Mamma scolds when they bring me home. Do you think she does right?

YOUNG GIRL.

It depends, my dear, what time the boys bring you home. If you come home late and do not come promptly from the show, your mother naturally should disapprove. Also, she may think the boys are not respectable. There is no harm in boys and girls being friendly, but the place for young girls at night is at home, and if the boys want to see her, they should visit her in her home.

If a really nice boy escorts you home from an afternoon show, I don't think mother will scold, for she must understand that it is natural for young folks to want to go together, and that you are beginning to grow into a young lady.

Assure your mother that the boys are all right and that you only want to do what is exactly right.

Every Day Talks To Every Day People

(BY FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.)

"The prices on living necessities are so high that it is simply impossible for a working man with a family to win a home. Anyway, it is cheaper to rent."

Taking the last statement first—is it?

We forgot to say that the opening paragraph is an extract from a conversation of two women who were enjoying the matinee at one of our local theaters the other afternoon.

Is it cheaper to rent? Of course you do not have to pay insurance, taxes and repair bills which are necessary to keep the house in good conditon—but neither do you have the fine satisfaction of knowing that you have that have that for which every man who lives in the world strives—a home of his own.

If you rent you can always find fault with the place when callers come. That's a safe and instructive topic for conversation; it has a tendency to cause the caller to infer that you have more of this world's goods than would appear on the surface, unless your caller happens to be of the class that Bret Marte tells about—they may list you as a whiner. But your maddening self-complacency that you air to the chance caller disappears when rent-day comes around, when you virtually reach out and put your money in the other fellow's pocket.

Why don't you own a home of your own? Are you afraid to go in debt? When just plain folks are in debt they generally plan the spending of their money more carefully; they look twice before they allow a dollar to slip through their (sometimes), incompetent fingers. If you have a debt to pay you deny yourself things that you may meet the payment. There are so many little things on every hand to take a person's money that if you have not some place for it, it is apt to be wheeled right out of your pocket before you realize.

The prices on the necessities of life are not so high as to make a home prohibitive if two people make up their minds to have one. There is nothing in this world that we may not have if we only want it hard enough to put everything else off the track and go right after it and stick until we get it.

The manager of this paper has had the writer go about to the different shops and stores and buy from a slender purse the necessary foodstuffs for a family. The food was to be wholesome and nourishing, as it is never a poor policy to save money at the expense of one's health. When I quote prices you are not to think that one must confine themselves to the articles of food that are mentioned. A cheap diet need not be monotonous, if we only know how to buy. Right here in your own home town can be had boiling beef at ten cents a pound. There are so many ways of preparing it that space will not be used on recipes, but if you think it improbable that a splendid little dinner cannot be built around boiling beef, you are very much mistaken. There is where so many housekeepers take a financial header. They see something that appeals to the appetite and without stopping to figure if it is inside their income they buy it. Then they have a deficit in their week's to-run-the-house sum and they wail over high prices. They go down town, rush home late for supper, stop and buy something that's all ready to serve at twice the price it would have cost them had they stayed at home and prepared it and again a wail goes skyward as to high prices.

Do you ever let your mind dwell on what you will do when your husband's salary is a thing of the past, for strange as it may seem to you now, that day will arrive. Are you as good a business manager as your husband is and are you careful of his money? Will you ever have a home of your own?

Black and White Not Colors.

Strictly speaking neither black nor white is a color, white being a combination of all the seven primary colors, and black being an absorption of all. Bodies that reflect all the rays of the sun are called white; those that reflect some rays and absorb others are called red, blue, green, etc.; those that absorb all the rays and reflect none are called black.

Consideration for Others.

A few more smiles of silent sympathy, a few more tender words, a little more restraint on temper, may make all the difference between happiness and half-happiness to those I live with.—Stopford Brooke.

SAVING FLEET THAT WENT UP RED RIVER

JANESVILLE MEN PLAYED PART IN WONDERFUL UNDERTAKING.

INTERESTING ACCOUNT

Writeen By Frederick Merk of the Wisconsin Historical Society, Gives New Facts.

There are Janesville men who served in the famous expedition that went up the Red River years ago when the North was fighting the South and who will read with interest the following account of the famous expedition that saved the fleet from capture by the rebel forces. It is writen by Frederick Merk, research assistant of the Wisconsin Historical Society.

Fifty years ago, in the spring of 1864, a Wisconsin lumberman by a brilliant exploit saved the Red River fleet of the Mississippi squadron from destruction. He thereby incidentally afforded a capital illustration of that fertility of expedients and mechanical genius which chiefly distinguished the Northern soldier in the Civil war from his Southern opponent in arms.

To thwart the intrigues of Napoleon III, who had sent a French army into Mexico, the Federal government desired to gain a strong military foothold in Texas. To this end it was planned to send a Union army and fleet into the interior of Texas by way of the Red River. Since the Red River was navigable only in the spring, as that season approached preparations were made for launching the campaign.

The army under General Banks, supported by Admiral Porter's fleet of gunboats, began the ascent of the river. But matters went badly for the invading force almost from the beginning. The Union leaders quarreled among themselves; the preparations made were inadequate; much delay was encountered in establishing a civil government in Louisiana; worst of all, the Red River suddenly began to fall, when by all precedents it should have risen. Admiral Porter, fearing that his fleet would be caught in the shallows, hurriedly descended the stream, and the army, deprived of its support and already savagely handled by the opposing Confederate forces, followed after.

At [illegible] Central Louisiana, [illegible] Federals found [illegible] face with a crisis. At this point the Red River is broken by a mile of rapids; the stream had fallen so quickly that the gunboats could no longer navigate this stretch of the channel. The stage of the water was but three feet four inches, whereas Porter's larger gunboats, with their heavy armament drew at least seven feet.

Here was indeed a desperate situation — the army far from its source of supplies, in the midst of a hostile country, the victorious enemy pressing in hot pursuit, and the $2,000,000 fleet marooned by falling water. It seemed to almost everyone that the only course open was to blow up the vessels to prevent their falling into the hands of the enemy.

But not to everyone, for a brave Wisconsin soldier had another idea of the matter. Lieutenant-Colonel Joseph Bailey of the 4th Wisconsin, who was serving at the time as acting-engineer of the Nineteenth Army Corps, came forward with a plan for bringing the ironclads to safety. It was to raise the level of the water above the rapids by constructing a great dam across the river. When a sufficient depth of water had accumulated he proposed to break the dam in the center, thus forcing the vessels with the outrushing flood through the shallows and into the deep water below. Before the war Colonel Bailey had been a lumberman, and had often seen this scheme employed in the Wisconsin pineries to "lift" stranded rafts of logs to safety. The project was at first received with ridicule by Colonel Bailey's superiors. It was declared impossible of achievement by the best engineers in the army. Only General Franklin, Bailey's immediate superior offered any encouragement.

But there was nothing else to be done, and at length the Wisconsin lumberman was dubiously granted permission to put his project to the proof. His first step was to requisition detachments of "pinery boys" from the 23rd and 29th Wisconsin regiments, who understood what was to be done and how to go about it.

In all, 3000 men were employed in the enterprise. Brawny lumberjacks from Maine vied with those from Wisconsin in prosecuting the work; catching the spirit of these instructors, soldiers who had never seen a log-raft also worked with a will. Hundreds of men were sent to felling trees; other hundreds toiled in the quarries that were opened for the occasion; and two or three hundred wagons were engaged in the essential work of transporting the materials for the dam. Up to their necks in the swift current, which swept over the rapids at the rate of nine miles an hour, under the blistering Southern sun, the men toiled with almost good humor and never a word of complaint.

At the end of eight days the river was sufficiently high to permit three of the lighter gunboats to pass the upper falls, where they had been held, and come down to a position immediately above the dam, ready to pass the lower rapids. One more day, and the dam would be high enough to permit all to come down in readiness for the final attempt.

With success thus about to be achieved, however, a discouraging disaster occurred. On the morning of the ninth day the steadily increasing pressure of the water caused two of the stone barges in the middle of the dam to swing aside, and through the opening thus created the accumulated torrent swirled. The three lighter vessels that were in position to make the passage, together with a fourth that had meanwhile come up, promptly took advantage of the break, and passing the remaining rapids on the flood tide, safely reached the deeper waters below.

Somewhat encouraged by the escape of at least four of the vessels, the men bravely set about repairing the damage that had been done. Withlin three days the break had been closed, and in addition two wing dams constructed on the upper falls. The remaining gunboats, somewhat lifted by the backwater of the wing dams, were now hauled over the upper falls, and on May 12, amid the tumultous cheers of 30,000 soldiers lined up along the shore, made the perilous passage over the lower falls to the deep water below.

"Words are inadequate to express the admiration I feel for the ability of Lieut. Col. Bailey," wrote Admiral Porter in his official report to the Navy Department. "This is without doubt, the best engineering feat ever performed. Under the best circumstances, a private company would not have completed the work under one year, and to an ordinary mind the whole thing would have appeared an impossibility. Leaving out his ability as an engineer—the credit he has conferred upon the country—he has saved the Union a valuable fleet worth nearly two million dollars; more, he has deprived the enemy of a triumph which would have emboldened them to carry on the war a year or two longer, for the intended departure of the army was a fixed fact, and there was nothing left for me to do in case that event occurred, but to destroy every part of the vessels so that the rebels could make nothing of them."

On June 11, 1864 Congress adopted a resolution of thanks to Lieut. Col. Bailey "for distinguished services in the recent campaign on the Red River, by which the gunboat Flotilla under Rear Admiral David D. Porter was rescued from imminent peril." A few months later the officers of Admiral Porter's fleet presented him with a beautiful sword and loving cup, and before the year was over he had been promoted by order of the War Department to the rank of brevet brigadier general. Thus did one Wisconsin lumberjack win his spurs, and at the same time valiantly serve his country, in the great civil conflict of half a century ago. The visitor to the Museum of the Wisconsin State Historical Society, at the foot of the University Hill, at Madison may still see the sword and loving-cup which Colonel Bailey's admiring brother-officers presented him.

BELOIT YOUTHS ARRESTED AND FINED AT ORFORDVILLE ON INTOXICATION CHARGE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Orfordville, July 14.—Two young fellows by the names of Art Layton and Edward McElroy and claiming Beloit as their home, drifted into town on Tuesday and proceeded to put the finishing touches on a good sized jag that they had been accumulating enroute. After spending some time in the village, McElroy, who had hired a livery rig at Beloit bethought himself that the owner of the steed might be getting restless as to the whereabouts of his property, and accordingly began preparations to depart for the Line City. Somehow in the arrangement a disagreement arose between the two thirsty travelers and before they had gotten to the cemetery blows had been exchanged and a free-for-all fight was in progress when some one phoned to Marshall Gavey who went to the scene of carnage with the result that both were carefully locked in the village bastile.

When brought up before Justice Taylor's court both pleaded "guilty" and were each given a fine of $10 and costs or fifteen days in jail. Layton chose the latter and was turned over to the tender care of Landlord Whipple, who in turn placed him under the watchful eye of James Finley the road contractor, and his earnings for the next fifteen days will go to the county. McElroy decided to pay his fine, and departed probably wiser for his experience.

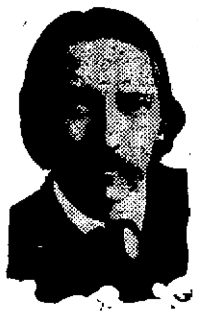
A LODGING FOR THE NIGHT

By Robert Louis Stevenson



ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON

BOOTH TARKINGTON

Twenty-four famous authors were asked recently to name the best short story in the English language. The choice of Booth Tarkington, Jack London, Alfred Henry Lewis and Richard Harding Davis was "A Lodging For the Night," by Robert Louis Stevenson.

He passed a corner where not so long before a woman and her child had been devoured by wolves. He remembered his mother telling him the story and pointing out the spot while he was yet a child. His mother! If he only knew where she lived he might make sure at least of shelter. He determined he would inquire upon the morrow—nay, he would go and see her, too, poor old girl! So thinking, he arrived at his destination—his last hope for the night.

The house was quite dark, like its neighbors, and yet after a few taps he heard a movement overhead, a door opening and a cautious voice asking who was there. The poet named himself in a loud whisper and waited, not without some trepidation, the result. Nor had he to wait long. A window was suddenly opened and a pailful of slops splashed down upon the doorstep. Villon had not been unprepared for something of the sort and had put himself as much in shelter as the nature of the porch admitted, but for all that he was deplorably drenched below the waist. His hose began to freeze almost at once. Death from cold and exposure stared him in the face. He remembered he was of phthisical tendency, and began coughing tentatively. But the gravity of the danger steadied his nerves. He stopped a few hundred yards from the door where he had been so rudely used and reflected with his finger to his nose. He could see only one way of getting a lodging and that was to take it. He had noticed a house not far away which looked as if it might be easily broken into, and thither he betook himself promptly, entertaining himself on the way with the idea of a room still hot, with a table still loaded with the remains of supper, where he might pass the rest of the black hours and whence he should issue on the morrow with an armful of valuable plate. He even considered on what viands and what wines he should prefer, and as he was calling the roll of his favorite dainties roast fish presented itself to his mind with an odd mixture of amusement and horror.

"I shall never finish that ballad," he thought to himself, and then, with another shudder at the recollection, "Oh, d—— his fat head!" he repeated fervently and spat upon the snow.

PART II.

THE house in question looked dark at first sight, but as Villon made a preliminary inspection in search of the handiest point of attack a little twinkle of light caught his eye from behind a curtained window.

"The devil!" he thought. "People awake! Some student or some saint, confound the crew! Can't they get drunk and lie in bed snoring like their neighbors? What's the good of curfew and poor devils of bell ringers jumping at a rope's end in bell towers? What's the use of day if people sit up all night? The gripes to them!" He grinned as he saw where his logic was leading him. "Every man to his business after all," added he, "and if they're awake, by the Lord, I may come by a supper honestly for once and cheat the devil."

He went boldly to the door and knocked. The sound of his blows echoed through the house with thin, phantasmal reverberations, as though it were quite empty, but these had scarcely died away before a measured tread drew near, a couple of bolts were withdrawn, and one wing was opened broadly, as though no guile or fear of guile were known to those within. A tall figure of a man muscular and spare, but a little bent, confronted Villon. The head was massive, but finely sculptured; the nose blunt at the bottom, but refining upward to where it joined a pair of strong and honest eyebrows; the mouth and eyes surrounded with delicate markings, and the whole face based upon a thick white beard, boldly and squarely trimmed.

"You knock late, sir," said the old man in resonant, courteous tones.

Villon cringed and brought up many servile words of apology. At a crisis of this sort the beggar was uppermost in him, and the man of genius hid his head with confusion.

"You are cold," repeated the old man, "and hungry? Well, step in." And he ordered him into the house with a noble enough gesture.

"Some great seigneur," thought Villon, as his host, setting down the lamp on the flagged pavement of the entry, shot the bolts once more into their places.

"You will pardon me if I go in front," he said when this was done, and he preceded the poet upstairs into a large apartment, warmed with a pan of charcoal and lit by a great lamp hanging from the roof. It was very bare of furniture; only some gold plate on a sideboard, some folios and a stand of armor between the windows. Some smart tapestry hung upon the walls representing the crucifixion of our Lord in one piece and in another a scene of shepherds and shepherdesses by a running stream. Over the chimney was a shield of arms.

"Will you seat yourself," said the old man, "and forgive me if I leave you? I am alone in my house tonight, and if you are to eat I must forage for you myself."

No sooner was his host gone than Villon leaped from the chair on which he had just seated himself and began examining the room with the stealth and passion of a cat. Then he stood in the middle of the room, drew a long breath, and, retaining it with puffed cheeks, looked round and round him, turning on his heels, as if to impress every feature of the apartment on his memory.

"Seven pieces of plate," he said. "If there had been ten I would have risked it. A fine house and a fine old master, so help me all the saints!"

And just then, hearing the old man's tread returning along the corridor, he stole back to his chair and began humbly toasting his wet legs before the charcoal pan.

His entertainer had a plate of meat in one hand and a jug of wine in the other. He set down the plate upon the table, motioning Villon to draw in his chair and going to the sideboard brought back two goblets, which he filled.

"I drink your better fortune," he said gravely, touching Villon's cup with his own.

"To our better acquaintance," said the poet, growing bold. A mere man of the people would have been awed by the courtesy of the old signor, but Villon was hardened in that matter; he had made mirth for great lords before now and found them as black rascals as himself. And so he devoted himself to the viands with a ravenous gusto, while the old man, leaning backward, watched him with steady, curious eyes.

"You have blood on your shoulder, my man," he said.

Montigny must have laid his wet right hand upon him as he left the house. He cursed Montigny in his heart.

"It was none of my shedding," he stammered.

"I had not supposed so," returned his host quietly. "A brawl?"

"Well, something of that sort," Villon admitted with a quaver.

"Perhaps a fellow murdered?"

"Oh, no, not murdered," said the poet, more and more confused. "It was all fair play—murdered by accident. I had no hand in it. God strike me dead!" he added fervently.

"One rogue the fewer, I dare say," observed the master of the house.

"You may dare to say that," agreed Villon, infinitely relieved. "As big a rogue as there is between here and Jerusalem. He turned up his toes like a lamb. But it was a nasty thing to look at. I dare say you've seen dead men in your time, my lord?" he added, glancing at the armor.

"Many," said the old man. "I have followed the wars, as you imagine. Have you any money?"

ALONE IN THE WILDERNESS

BY JOSEPH KNOWLES

COPYRIGHT, 1913, BY SMALL, MAYNARD & CO.

PROLOGUE.

Here is a notable story of a man who went alone into the vast wilderness of northern Maine and without food or clothing lived for two months, using his ingenuity and strength to supply his wants. He became a primeval man, just the sort of human being that many scientists argue was the ancestor of the educated races of today. You will be fascinated by the narrative of Joseph Knowles, artist, student and philosopher, and marvel at his hardihood, his perseverance and his practical, intricate knowledge of woodcraft. He shows you how resourceful man can combat and overcome the powerful forces of nature. He gives you a down to date, true to life picture of the conditions that confronted our forefathers in the remote ages. He teaches in words that will long live in your memory the great human lesson that hope is the salvation of the soul. The action in this remarkable document is continued and engrossing. The episode of the white fawn and the battle of the moose are vivid portrayals of animal life that carry with them the realism of actual truth. Read to the end this graphic reminder of the times when men and women existed without the artificial aids that contribute to their needs and desires today.

CHAPTER I.

The Birth of an Idea.

ON the Saturday afternoon of Oct. 4, 1913, just at the time when sunshine marked the end of two days' heavy rain, I emerged from the Canadian forest on the shores of Lake Megantic, having lived the life of a primitive man for two months in the wilderness of northern Maine.

I was tanned to the color of an Indian. I had a matted beard and long, matted hair. I was scratched from head to foot by briers and underbrush.

Over the upper part of my body I wore the skin of a black bear, which I had fastened together in front with deerskin thongs. My legs were incased in crudely tanned deerskin chaps, with the hair inside. On my feet I wore moccasins of buckskin, sewed together with sinew. I wore no hat. On my back was a pack made from woven lining bark of the cedar, in which I carried various implements from the forest.

I had a rude bow and arrows, and a crude knife made from the horn of a deer dangled at my waist.

Joseph Knowles Before Entering Wilderness.

It was thus that I entered the little French-Canadian town of Megantic—back to the civilized world.

I received a welcome that I had not dreamed of, and I was very happy, for it proved to me at that time that the people were really interested. However, as the hours went on I began to realize that they considered that I had done a wonderful thing.

It is because of this impression, which seems to have taken hold of many people since my return, that I will begin this narrative by saying that it was not wonderful. Above all else I want to emphasize that my living alone in the wilderness for two months without clothing, food or implements of any kind was not a wonderful thing. It was an interesting thing, but it was not wonderful.

Any man of fair health could do the same thing provided he meant business and kept his head. But to the best of my knowledge no other man in the history of civilization ever did what I did.

The idea of this experiment came to me about a year ago while I was spending a few weeks at Bradford, Vt. At the time I was painting pictures of outdoor life in a little log cabin on what is known in that locality as Saddleback mountain. I was painting a moose, and as I added a touch of color to the canvas I began to wonder how many people would notice that particular bit of color, which from a standpoint of faithful portrayal was as important as the eye of the creature itself.

From this thought my mind wandered on to the realization that the people of the present time were sadly neglecting the details of the great book of nature.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Daily Gazette, July 15, 1874.—We are informed that aside from the military company to be organized in this city, Capt. Paulis Colvin has a squad of Mulligan guards, which are being drilled and will soon appear on our streets in full uniform.

Experts believe that the fire at Corning's barn was caused by a smoker throwing a match on the straw. A man smoking went by the spot, just before the fire was seen. Boys drilling the day before swept a quantity of refuse to the door.

It is not quite certain that the artesian well at the fair ground has struck rock, but the drift has been bored through and clay or something like if not rock has been reached; probably the rock will be reached sometime this afternoon.

There is a congregation of citizens at every corner discussing the fires in Oshkosh and Chicago which the great wind of last night fanned into terrible proportions.

Forepaugh's Mammoth Shows will be with us within a few days. Saturday's exhibition will be fine and must attract thousands to our city.

The dust which annoyed everyone yesterday will hardly be thought of today, so thorough a soaking have the streets received.

The premises prepared for James Sutherland, on Main street, will be occupied by him on or before the first of August, and will be much more commodious than the corner store.

Harvesting operations have been delayed by last night's deluge, but the crops have been benefited thereby.

Many citizens complain of valuable letters not coming to hand. Time may show whether they were destroyed by the Chicago fire. Let us hope they were delayed.

The rumor that our fire engines were telegraphed for from Chicago is not founded on fact.
